To Our Teachers -

The Junior Class Dedicate This,
The 1927 Number of the Twenty Echo.

"HERE'S TO OLD LIBERTY HIGH"

I.

Come all of you, classmates, unite in our song,
Here's to old Liberty High!
Our voices shall ring ever loudly and long,
Here's to dear Liberty High!

(Chorus)

Oh loyalty deepens whenever we sing,
True is the pledge and the tribute we bring;
Here's to our school,
Here's to our school,
Here's to dear Liberty High.

II.

Cheer first the Freshmen, such bright girls and boys, (Cheer for the Freshman class;
Cheer Sophomores, too, full of blinf and of noise,
(Cheer for the Sophomores)

III.

Nine rahs for Juniors, who the Annual write,
Rah for the Junior class;
Nine rahs for Seniors, (Commencement in sight,
Rah for the Senior class;

IV.

Here's to the teachers, whose tempers we test,
Here's to the teachers, too,
So cheer for us all, may we each do our best—
Rah for the whole High School.

LIBERTY CENTER HIGH SCHOOL.

LIBER PRIMUS—

All High School is divided into four regions: the primus is inhabited by the Freshviri, the secundus by the Sophomores, the tertius by the Juniores, and the quartus by the Seniores (called in their own language, the Eleot). A distance of eight credits divides the Freshviri from the Sophomores, the Sophomores from the Juniores, and the Juniores from the Seniores.

LIBER SECUNDUS—

Conquests of ours as Freshviri, 1923-4:

Having absorbed all the knowledge of Hither School, ours, on the Kalends of September, entered Further School (called Liberty Center High School) with diabus legions. The prima legio contained one puer and the secunda eleven puellae. Under the leadership of Imperator Welch, Legatus Deopber and Legatus David, we fought many battles with Algebra, English, Latin and History, finding Algebra and Latin the strongest enemies. Eight credits being granted us, we returned home for the summer vacation.

LIBER TERTIUS—

Conquests of ours as Sophomores, 1924-5:

Under the rule of Imperator Welch, Legata Calkins and Legata Corlew, we re-entered Further School with one puer in our prima legio and eleven puellae in the secunda. This year, we encountered Cleometry, but put it to flight. English, Algebra, History and Poesar made a conspiracy against us, but we forced them to give us as hostages eight more precious credits. So we returned in triumph to summer quarters.

LIBER QUARTUS—

Conquests of ours as Juniores, 1925-6:

Inherited by past victories, we came back to Further School with one puer in our prima legio and nine puellae in the secunda. Leroy Hamrhan deserted from our prima legio, but Alvar Olson enlisted in his place. We worked industriously on three hundred tabulae of the Liberty Echo and presented a play, "Captivi in Woodville." Under the leadership of Imperator Bookelmann, Legatus Carlson and Legata Corlew, we laid siege to eight more credits, and, having gained possession of them, ceased fighting for three months.

LIBER QUINTUS—

Conquests of ours as Seniores, 1926-7:

In September of this year, we made our quartus march into Further School as Seniores. Our prima legio still contained one puer, but the secunda legio had lost two milites, Margaret O'Connor, who journeyed to Cluesterton, and Grace Landberg, whom home duties called away. We found a change in our officers as well, for, with acate, Le Albery had had Legata C. Corlew in matrimonium, so now her name became Legata Albery. Again we faced and vanquished new enemies: Physics, Bookkeeping, Civics, Virgil. Encommes and their many kinsmen. Tonight we are offering to Further School the first Class Night Program to be given at Liberty Center. We have obtained our thirty-two credits; we are now awaiting Commencement; then we shall embark on the Mare Vitae, Exultate vos salutamus! We, who are about to depart, salute you!

SENIOR CLASS WILL

(By ASTRID JOHNSON)

WE, THE SENIORS of Liberty Center High School, being of sound mind and memory, do hereby declare and publish this to be our Last Will and Testament.

I, we our Principal, Mrs. Hazel Bookelmann, we hereby bequeath the reading of Chaucer's "Prologue," and our love for singing in morning exercises, together with our heartfelt thanks for all she has given us during our Senior days.

II. To Mrs. Cecil Albrey, we hereby bequeath our knowledge of Greek and Commercial Geography. We wish to thank her for her kindness to us and for the interest she has taken in the girls' Basketball Team.

III. To Mr. Carlson, we bequeath our knowledge of Commercial Arithmetic and Physics, and to him we offer our thanks for his politeness to us.

IV. To the Alumni, we entrust the Senior row of seats in Assembly, our Senior Allegory and privileges, and our polished letters.

V. To the Sophomores, we bequeath two of our outstanding accomplishments to the boys, our shoddy habits, to the girls, our shabby dresses and our one another.

VI. To the Freshmen, we hereby give and bequeath our overloading sweater and our ability to go downstairs quietly.

VII. I, Astrid Olson, do hereby give to Leslie Samuels my portion of being badly every morning.

VIII. I, Lucy Lundahl, do bequeath to Gladys Biggs my skill in playing the saxophone, and to Norma Beltruff, the honor of teaching the primary room when Miss Aylesworth is late.

IX. I, Genevieve Figoliak, do hereby give to Corinne Jacobson, the honor of becoming punist for the Orchestra.

X. We, Astrid Johnson and Ruth Esserman, do hereby bequeath to the Sophomore girls our record of being friends for twelve long years.

XI. I, Iva Cole, do hereby give to Dorothy Gustafson my love for Geometry and Virgil.

XII. I, Ida Cole, do hereby bequeath to Iris Babcock the honor of having the rear corner seat in Assembly, always provided that she does not use the book shelves for a waste paper basket or coat locker.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, We, the Class of Twenty-seven, the testators, have to this, our will, set our hand and seal this sixth day of April, One Thousand Nine Hundred Twenty-seven.

A FRESHMAN RECIPE

BY LOTELLA DAV

"Out of the Harbor,
Out on the Deep"

INGREDIENTS:

- | | |
|-----------------------|-----------------------|
| 1. Stimulskin Rotiev | 8. U'ad Alleneol |
| 2. Segtib Lraee | 9. Greblekeob Duomyar |
| 3. Hietvoksevo Egroog | 10. Enlitenh Nonrev |
| 4. Iksyvolg Dvawde | 11. Gnohredneh Annoel |
| 5. Segtib Syvalig | 12. Nosboceaj Ennuroe |
| 6. Iksmovoiks Yrneth | 13. Segtib Htur |
| 7. Exlithing Dertla | 14. Keep Nihkarf |
| 15. Kclah Ecinereb | |

METHOD OF PROCEDURE:

Pour Peek over a combination of three varieties of Biggs. When mixture is lukewarm add Gloyeski and Skoronoski. Stir in Hlaick and Jacobson, beating with "Crives" and "Vocations" until smooth. Pour into a large "English" crock to rise. When light, add alternately Dan and Henderlong, and stir until stiff enough to knead. Knead until smooth, and let rise again. Turn out on Algebra, roll and pat until about an inch in thickness. Sprinkle with Hoeckelberg and Hinkelne, cut into strips and place in pans well greased with Latin. When mixture has doubled in cleverness, bake in the High School Assembly for nine months. When done, turn out on an examination, frost with a mixture of Miskimins and Wroeseworth. The result will be—not the fifteen green Freshman ingredients, with which you began, but a fine batch of Sophomores!

This is the good ship "Senior"
That has sailed the stormy main,
And now, for the last time, has come
To leave the port again.

Four journeys have been made before—
One for each year in school,
But each trip desertions brought
A decrease in our crew.

And now our ship is ready
To leave the High School haven,
Prepared for a journey longer far
Is this fearless crew of seven.

So we bid farewell to High School days,
From the Commencement harbor we sail
"Out on the Deep," o'er the sea of life
To a rosy future "All hail!"

—IVA TOLE.

Harold came in late again and we could see that he had fallen down.
Teacher—"Well, Harold, where have you been?"
Harold—"In the mud."

CALENDAR

(By MARCIA DILLINGHAM)

SEPTEMBER

- 6 Jack in school again! The Freshies look nearly as green as we did.
10 The same old story. "Don't whisper and don't chew gum."
17 Girls have first basketball practice at noon.
20 Seniors go to the Fair to decorate our booth. No wonder we won second prize.
24 Iva teaches History II in Room B411!
27 New basketball goals. Now watch our dust!

OCTOBER

- 1 Basketball game with Kouts.
8 Basketball game with Wheeler.
14 First six weeks' tests. Any failures?
18 The boys played Crisman.
20 Two five drills. Be prepared for another.
22 Luvy and Evelyn have a dramatic spill and crash at the corner. The car was worse wrecked than they, but such a scare for everybody!
Basketball game with Washington at the Wheeler gym.
27 Mr. Carlson spilled water all over himself in Physics class. Did we laugh?
28 Mrs. Boeckmann found out how necessary it is that she have life insured. We think so, too.
29 The Deep Sea Revel.

NOVEMBER

- 1 Halloween past and everyone safe from the goblins for another year.
8 Characters chosen for "The Union Depot."
9 Our first real snow. Jungle balls!
12 The Freshies have a tea-party at noon. Just their luck!
15 Mr. Carlson decides that Geometry III is a lot dumber than last year's class.
17 Senior rings arrive. Dignity flew to the four winds then. We played Washington at the Crisman gym.
19 Thanksgiving Festival.
23 Second six weeks' tests. They surely were hard-boiled.
24 Lizzie awakes hurriedly from his usual Assembly nap.
Thanksgiving vacation begins

DECEMBER

- 2 Boys played Union Center.
8 Ida and Iris got stranded where!
9 Everyone tries out their new skates.
13 A new girl in school. Much settling of neckties and smoothing of hair in the boys' clubroom.
14 Nothing happened today.
17 Senior candy came. Ask us how we found out!
20 Luvy tries to skip English by taking a nap.
22 Semester exams. If those people in Indianapolis would only "have a heart."
24 Exams over. Now to find a really big stocking that is free from holes and guaranteed to stretch!

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

By IRIS BABCOCK

Ever since the tournament, a year ago, the girls of Liberty Center have wanted to play basketball. Mr. Gustafson had promised a new court if we could get a team. Mrs. Albery consented to coach us, and we started in with enthusiasm. But until our court could be completed, we had to practice on the boys' and that meant—war! However, certain nights were set aside for girls' practice, and then we all got busy.

The first game scheduled was with Kouts at the Wheeler gym. As the girls had not yet purchased their suits, they had to play in middies and knickers. Kouts, stronger and more experienced, conquered us easily. Then followed a list of defeats: Waterloo, Visman, Washington! But we were learning by experience and the scores became more gratifying. Weeks and weeks then passed with neither practice nor games.

Just now we were to meet Union Center at Wheeler, February 18. We had a football practice at Salt Creek. The boys had been improving all fall and had been making some close scores, so they had a strong feeling that they might win. But, to the surprise of all, it was the girls' team that earned the first and only basketball victory for Liberty Center in the year 1926-1927.

The lineup is as follows:

Iva Cole (Captain)	Right Forward
Ila Cole	Jumping Center
Iris Babcock	Center Guard
Corinne Jacobson	Left Forward
Dora Schmidt	Left Guard
Marcia Dillingham	Right Guard

Dora left school and Irene Hunsar played in her position in the Union Center game. Alice Hamrath will take Dora's place on the first team. As substitutes, we had Genevieve Figorally, Ruth Johnson, Lillie Schmidt and Norma Beltroult. Norma is the only substitute still playing with the team. But there is promising material in the class graduating from the Eighth grade, and we have high hopes of making a good record next year.

THE STORY OF THE PLAY

MARY MERRILL finds herself overshadowed in the family by two charming older sisters: Jean, whose maternalism have made her famous; and Maudie, whose hobby is the propagation of beautiful flowers, especially larkspurs. Jean is, moreover, engaged to a promising young man, so the family interest is centered about her approaching marriage to Christopher. But Mary, who is twenty, is still "the baby" to everyone, even the faithful family servant, Melissa.

During her absence on a visit, Mary resolves on a wild scheme to get attention. Upon her return she announces that she has not only met a certain eminent author at the seashore, but that she is engaged to him. Her relatives make the desired fuss until Mary is at her wits end to discover a way out of the difficulty, for she has never even seen the man.

That evening, a strolling actor takes refuge in her garden and asks to be permitted to hide there until morning. He is a rather sensitive fellow, who wishes to escape the curious questions and joking comments of his fellow-players concerning a newspaper

THE Gold Banquet to the Blues

THE defeated side in the contest in selling subscriptions to the "Liberty Echo of 1927," served a banquet to the winners Friday afternoon, April 22, at one o'clock. The menu was as follows: meat loaf, scalloped potatoes, cabbage salad, rolls, orange ice cream, cake and cocoa.

After doing full justice to the appetizing food, the pupils enjoyed the following program of toasts and songs, Mr. Carlson being the genial toastmaster:

THE Parent-Teachers' Ass'n

THIS is the fifth year that the parents and patrons interested in the children at Liberty Center have had a Parent-Teachers' Association. This group is affiliated with the state organization and has as its purpose, "Service to the School." A membership in the film service of the extension department of Indiana University has provided them with interesting and instructive material for the monthly programs. Pupils from the various rooms have added recitations and musical numbers. Twice yearly the P. T. A. has provided treats for the entire school. They have interested themselves as an organization in the movement for a bigger and better building to house our school activities. The present officers are: President, Mrs. Cook; Vice President, Mr. E. Esserman; Treasurer, Mrs. Figolet; Secretary, Mrs. Jacobson.

ACT III. (1926-1927)

(CHARACTERS: During this act, Edward Esserman and Lilie and Dora Schmitt withdrew, leaving the cast the perfect number, seven.)

SETTING: The same.

Scene I.

We found the teachers to be the same as in the previous year. We elected to study English, American History, Physics and Geometry.

Scene II.

We had a class-meeting and elected the following officers: President, Marcia Dillingham, Vice-President, Ruth Johnson; Secretary, Marjorie Drake; Treasurer, Iris Babcock.

Scene III.

We elected the Annual Board, whose names appear in the first pages of this copy of the "Echo."

Scene IV.

We took charge of the selling campaign and got subscriptions for nearly two hundred Annuals.

Scene V.

We prepared the literary and art material for the Annual.

Scene VI.

We gave a successful play, "The Delegates."

Scene VII.

We directed the banquet given to the Blues by the Golds.

Scene VIII.

We planned the decorations for the Senior Commencement, May 26th.

"THE IMPORTANCE OF MARY"

account of his engagement. As this report was a hoax and he had never met the girl in question, a man as shy with girls as he is, finds himself very embarrassed. Mary finds to her consternation that this man, really an author just taking this tour to get local color for his stories, is the famous Peter Dilloway! And she, Mary Merrill, is the girl whose boldness has distracted the young author so!

But Peter has fallen deeply in love with the black-eyed Mary in the beautiful old garden, and her confession the next morning does not prevent a happy ending to an unpleasant predicament. So Mary acquires a right to the importance she has assumed, and, best of all, to the devotion of the man she loves.

Fairy Land

THAT boy, or girl, has not heard of Fairyland and the Fairies! Let us take a trip to this land of sunshine and happiness.

Gathering the outside gate were eight little men, wearing green capes, green stockings and black high-topped slippers. Above the gate was a sign. It read: "Ask each little man his name, remember it so you can tell the gnomes at the next gate."

Just outside the next gate were four little dwarfs, wearing red caps and capes, black shoes and stockings. Their names were written in gold letters on their caps. They were Robert, Joe, William and Edward. In one voice they said: "Name the gnomes! Don't leave jessed, and you may enter Fairyland!" So we said: "William, Harold, Lloyd, Stanley, Freddie, I've it, Arnold and Roy."

Just then the gate opened and there were two more gnomes. Their names, Donald and Chaney, were in gold letters on the front of their capes. These gnomes took us to the King of the Dwarfs, whose name was Carl. King Carl could speak some of the longest words you ever heard. The first word he said was: "Dorislalia-Hrothol-Eumachanie." So sooner had he finished than five of the smallest little fairies came dancing up to us. They bowed to their king, then to us, and stepped back near the wall.

King Carl spoke another big word: "EllonHildafoamAmn-bale-Norin-Vergina." Six little fairies came and stood by the rest. Again King Carl uttered a word too long for us to think of speaking. It was: "Longo-DoristronedErnnaPenthorchMarpanJounieAnna-Green-worsonMiddled." So sooner had he finished than twelve more little fairies came out. They were all dressed in white with their hair streaming on their dresses and caps. They had little bell bracelets on their wrists.

Soon we heard fairy music. The fairies did some very pretty dances. The May pole dance was beautiful. We wanted to stay longer, but King Carl said, "You have done enough for this time," and the fairies went away.

The Primary Orchestra

THE Primary Orchestra has sixteen members, including the leader, Pearl Laszlo. Joe Oreskovich is our drummer, Anna Grace Anderson and Juanita Sanders play xylophones, Doris Cleveland and Louise Esserman the triangles, Doris Blackman the rattle bones, Loraine Esserman the castanets, and Carl Babcock the cycler. Ask Janet Cook what she plays! Then there are six tambourines, played by six sweet, little maidens, Jonnie Nicholson, Emma Babcock, Virginia Olson, Ellen Dan, Emma Huszar and Hilda Johnson.

Joan Marchkowski was the leader for one month. Pearl had let her average fall three points below the necessary eighty percent and so could not take part.

Mr. Benke made our music stands and varnished them. They are a great help to our Orchestra. We have appeared in public twice: at the Christmas entertainment and at the Parent-Teachers' meeting in January. We practice each Wednesday and Friday morning. Here's hoping that each member will become so interested in music that he will fit himself for a real orchestra, when he is old enough to be in High School.

PRIMARY GAMES

An event of great interest to our room has been our ball game, the three B's. There are three sides, Blues, Blacks and Browns.

Before we could play, we had to learn some playground rules. Some of them are:

Play fair, don't cheat

Be a willing loser.

Cheer the victors.

Don't swear, keep sweet.

The people on the Blue side are winners now, but the others will make them play hard to stay ahead long.

PUPILS OF INTERMEDIATE GRADES

FIRST ROW—Left to right—Robert Lorenz, Marshall Bicks, Robert Hockelburg, Floyd Hittm, Hazel Bicks.
SECOND ROW—Henry Bicks, Helen Dally, Henrietta Pau, Marie Herderfink, Edna Johnson, Bernice Cleassee.
THIRD ROW—Leslie Passerich, Henry Hockelburg, John Wozniak, Leonard Sanders, Lavern Beckman, Kenneth Hyden, Helen Lassio.
FOURTH ROW—John Beckman, John Wozniak, John Wozniak, Leonard Sanders, Lavern Beckman, Kenneth Hyden, Helen Lassio.

THIS YEAR IN THE INTERMEDIATE GRADES

By Mrs. J. T. A. meeting and were much appreciated.

At all a few parties this year, which everyone enjoyed. We took part in the "Fall Festival" and have happy memories of our lucky weeks and Pilgrim mads. In April, our girls sang two songs for the P. T. A. meeting and were much appreciated.

The Fourth Grade, especially, enjoy their Reading class, as when Alice gets his tongue twisted and says "w-a-p" for "wash." They enjoy dramatizing stories, especially "The Rebel Cow" when Robert takes the part of Lord Cornwallis and Bessie is Cynthia.

One day, when we were singing, a Fourth Grade boy was asked why he did not sing. He replied, "Because one day I didn't sing and somebody asked if the piano had been fixed."

One day, when three boys make up our Fifth Grade. One day in our English class, we heard of a lesson in politeness, which was amusing. One of our boys had been taught that he must never keep a seat when others were standing. One day he was riding on a crowded street-car with his father, and, because of the crowd, was seated on his father's knee. When another young lady entered the car, the boy jumped down and said with a polite bow: "Please, Miss, will you take my place?"

In the Sixth Grade, there are six girls and seven boys; this class is on the whole, good in its work. These pupils enjoy finding the area of triangles and parallelograms. They like to study geography, so they can make clay maps.

One day, one of our Sixth Grade boys asked if he could borrow a comb. The following conversation ensued:

Miss D—: "Why didn't you comb your hair before you came to school?"

Boy: "I ain't got no comb."

Miss D—: "Borrow your father's."

Boy: "Father hasn't one, either."

Miss D—: "Doesn't he comb his hair?"

Boy: "He ain't got no hair."

* * *

We have enjoyed our lessons together, although they have, at times, been difficult. We hope and pray that we can be together again next term and continue our work.

Jokes On Us

THE beginning of the school term we had a rather large class; there were nineteen pupils in the Eighth Grade and fourteen in the Seventh Grade, making a total of thirty-three.

But during the term the following pupils have left us: Mercedes Blackman, Dorothy Rhoda, Dorothy Neelley, Mable Higgs, Martin Hansen and Marion Tomlinson.

The pupils entering Liberty Center from district schools were: Charles Bloom, Ella Lahtayne, Frederick Zangbaum, Emanuel and Leonard Noveske, Edward Hoffman, Robert Babcock and Robert Lehnberg.

In October, our room and the High School were entertained by a party arranged by "The Country Gentlemen." All reported an enjoyable time. At the Fall Festival, our room presented "The Family Album." Those not in the play helped downstairs in the booths. At Christmas time, we had a party, which the teacher had prepared for us. February twenty-second, we had a farewell party for Dorothy Rhoda. We also celebrated Washington's birthday at the same time. On March 25th, the Seventh and Eighth Grades' Junior Citizens Club put on a program for the P. T. A. meeting. It was a success and quite a large crowd attended, although the weather was stormy.

Among the amusing people of our room are Harold and Ralph, whose mischief is always getting them into trouble.

The Seventh and Eighth Grades have had an enjoyable year and hope to see all of the Eighth Grade pupils return as Freshies, next year.

—ELLA LAHTAYNE,
CLARICE BLOOM.

Harold wanted to know if he could take "The Enchanted Mirror" home with him.

Mrs. Pearson was telling the Seventh Grade that they should try to do better in Arithmetic, for they would need to know it in later life.

Harold, speaking, said: "O, I'm going to marry a school teacher, so I don't need to know all that."

The Seventh Grade were to write to someone, asking permission to have a picnic on his property. Harold's paper started thus: "Dear Mr. Babcock—We would like to make a fire in your woods."

While Mercedes was writing in penmanship drill she said: "Don't talk to me or I'll go over the line."

Robert Babcock—"That isn't made right."
Helene—"Neither are you."

Teacher—"Why do we celebrate July Fourth?"
Bright Student—"Because it is President Coolidge's birthday."

Mrs. Pearson (while playing one of the music contest records)—"Ella, what does this music sound like?"
Ella (absent-minded)—"It sounds like thunder."

Arthur was trying to nap in English class time, so teacher sang a lullaby for him. He has managed to stay awake since.

Ella is the girl who thinks she can wrap herself in the atmosphere and get away with it.

For Physiology lesson we were to draw the eye. (Teacher looking over the drawings)—"Eda, where is your eye?"
Eda—"In my head."

The Wedding

NE Friday afternoon in October, when Mrs. Albery was conducting the Freshman Civics class in the assembly, Dorothy (tutafeson) walked into the room, and, seating herself at the piano, played a few chorists from a wedding march. Mrs. Albery was about to send Dorothy to her seat, but the door again opened and in came—a bridal party! Stahart Glenn Olson, carrying a bouquet and with a four yard train sweeping behind, was leaning on the arm of Melvin Sutclum (only a foot shorter). Edith Drake and Evelyn Lundahl with huge white sashes and bows on their hair served as attendants. William Fitzgerald followed, carrying a huge harness ring in the heart of a snidower. Beilton Blackman and George Shooter were the flower girls. The bride and groom took their places before the minister Norma Ikberth, who exalted many strange promises on the part of the contracting parties. Then the bridal party reformed and married to the rear of the room, where Glenn presented Mrs. Albery with the bouquet (each flower of which concealed a ten-cent present) and a be-ribboned package containing a silver sugar and creamer, the gift of the High School pupils. Mrs. Albery responded graciously to the expressions of congratulation.

The Junior and Senior girls served orangeade and nabiscos. The wedding was so much fun, we hope Mr. Carlson will give us the opportunity to repeat the event.

Mrs. B. assigning a Latin I lesson—"For tomorrow, turn over in your books to page 70."

Freshman—"Impossible!!!"

Teacher—"Now, John, what did I say?"

John—"Something I can't remember."

Helene—"Art, why don't you ever study English?"

Art—"Because I'm American."

The Deep Sea Revel

NE morning the representative of the Curtis Publishing Company appeared with suggestions for a contest in the sale of their publications. As we needed money to pay our membership dues for the film service from Indiana University, we were glad of the opportunity, and decided to include Mrs. Pearson's room in the work and fun.

Benton Blackman was chosen business manager. The pupils divided into three competing teams: the Pirates, under the guidance of Lucy Lundahl; the Sea Dogs, with Iris Babcock as captain; and the Buccaneers, working with Corinne Jacobson. The last named team sold the most subscriptions, so at Halloween on the two other groups gave them their party, "The Deep Sea Revel."

Everyone had heaps of fun, from the tattooing, which gave admittance, to the final stunt, "Burying the Treasure" (stowing away the cats). The character of the games and contests may be judged from the names of a few, such as: "Casting the Moorings," "Raising the Sail," "All Hands on Deck," "Holding the Course," "Hoisting the Deck," "Porting the Starboard," and "Heaving the Anchor."

THE FESTIVAL

ON THE evening of November 19, the entire school building was the scene of our second Thanksgiving Festival. Entertainments were going on in each of the four class rooms and refreshments served in the basement rooms. The crowds shifted from place to place, enjoying the varying types of amusement.

The three Primary Grades had a clever series of songs and folk dances. Their conical masks, quaint costumes, and frolicsome antics gave their show the title, "Punny Folks."

The boys and girls of Miss Danielson's room presented a playlet, "A Thanksgiving Dream," in which animated pumpkins, turkeys, goblets and Puritans gave a small boy, who ate too much, a terrible time.

The "Family Album," by the Seventh and Eighth Grades, was also a success. An old-fashioned lady (Ella Johnson) exhibited the portraits in the album with appropriate remarks on the life of each of her family. The portraits were particularly attractive.

In the basement, the North Pole booth offered ice cream sandwiches and Eskimo Pies and were sold out early in the evening. The Brown family had balloons, whistles, candy, and especially offered to sell. The element of chance made the Fishing Pond especially attractive to the small folks. The entire domestic science room was turned over to the Dutch Restaurant this year. Their sandwiches, pie ala mode, and coffee were the most popular refreshments and drew a crowd from first to last.

The High School entertainment was a presentation of "Scenes in the Town of Detroit." The depot surely had a cross-section of human life to show with foot children, henpecked husbands, college boys, a wedding party, the widower with five children, the lonely spinster seeking some one to lean on, an eloping pair, country folks having strange experiences in the city, etc., etc. The characters were as follows:

EARLY YEARS IN LIBERTY TOWNSHIP

[By RUTH JOHNSON]

THE dawn of history, this land was a hunting ground for the Portawatomies. Through its borders came the Jesuits and French fur-traders, giving the title to the land to the French because of their explorations. But the Seven Years War was closed by the Treaty of Paris in 1763, assigning this country to the English. In 1783, at the close of the Revolution, when the independence of the United States was recognized, the colonies were granted control of all the land to the west of them as far as the Mississippi River. And our township was then considered part of the State of Connecticut.

When the large states surrendered their western land claims, the federal government had a frontier to govern. The Ordinance of 1787 provided that this new territory should have a governor appointed by Congress. It stipulated that the Northwest Territory should have its own legislature, that under certain conditions it should make its own laws, and that some day it should be divided into states with the same rights and privileges as the original thirteen. Slavery in the territory was forever prohibited, and religious liberty guaranteed.

In 1800, Congress organized the Indiana territory, including all the Northwest Territory, except Ohio. In 1805, Michigan was set off and Illinois in 1809, leaving Indiana with its present boundaries. By act of Congress, April 17, 1816, Indiana was authorized to form a state government. A state constitution was written, which was adopted at an election held in June, and the first week of Congress, December 11, 1816, the state was admitted into the Union, being the nineteenth state to enter, and thus represented by two senators and ten representatives.

In 1835, a large tract of government land was sold at auction from which were formed the counties of LaPorte and Lake. At this sale, land speculators with their usual shrewdness, offered a portion of a section to the settlers who agreed not to bid against them and thus they obtained a two-fold benefit. They bought their land at a low price and secured its rise in value by the improve-ments made on the part given away. Liberty Township, being heavily timbered, was especially valuable to them and the quarter part was obtained and held long after other portions of the country were quite densely populated.

The surface of the township is generally level, and in the western and northwestern portions there is considerable swamp land. The soil consists of dark loam or clay and seems especially favorable for the production of timber. The most valuable is oak, and the other varieties are maple, hickory, ash and elm, with more limited quantities of black walnut, butternut and white wood. Two creeks of considerable size, with three small lakes or ponds, form the chief water supply. Salt Creek, which once widened to form one of the ponds, passes through the southwestern part and furnished considerable waterpower. Long Lake, in the southeastern part, the largest of the three, is connected by a narrow channel, with Flint Lake in Center Township.

Probably the first settlement in this township was made by Owen Crumacker, who came from Union County, Indiana, in 1834. During the same year, William Downing, Jerry Todhunter, and Elizabeth Castree, also came. During the next two years, the number was increased by the arrival of John Dillingham, E. P. Cole, William Gossel, Asa Zane, Ira Biggs, David Hagarth, John White, Frederick Wolf, William Calhoun and others. The people, at this time, were divided into three settlements known as the Dillingham settlement in the eastern part, Zane in the central, and Salt Creek settlement in the western part. The first houses in the Zane settlement were built by Asa Zane and Ira Biggs in the early part of 1835. During this year, David and William Hinghart came from Greenbrier County, West Virginia, having been forty-five days in making the journey. They built a house sixteen by twenty-five in which both families numbering fifteen, lived for several months.

In 1836, after the County was organized, the first regularly laid out road was constructed. At the spring term of the Commissioners Court, Peter Ritter, Samuel Olinger and William Thomas

GARY . . . INDIANA

They were appointed to run a road from Castor's Mill on Coffee Creek to William's Mill, through the country line. Previous to this time, Indian trails had been the only roads, save those that had been made by the county, was organized. About 1851, the construction of a plank road to extend from Valparaiso to Michigan City was begun. It passed through the eastern part of the township.

The first saw mill in this township was built by Samuel Hager of Danion Run in 1836. It was run by T. J. Field until 1858, when he sold it to William Johnson, who, after seven or eight years, sold it to fall into disuse. A little later in the same year William crossed began the erection of a saw mill on the east bank of Salt Creek.

The first store was opened by McPherson and Meyers at Salt Creek in 1845. Their stock was small, not much larger than is carried by a stout peddler and consisting principally of those articles included in a comprehensive term, "Yankee Notions." Probably, at this time there were but two postoffices within the township, one at which was opened at Woodville, a station on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. The other office was at Salt Creek, opened about 1855 with John Beck as the first postmaster.

The first school in the township, taught in a log house, was held in the Zane settlement in 1836. Mrs. Sophia Dye was the first teacher, leaving about fifteen pupils and receiving for a salary two dollars per week. The house was built by the neighbors in common, with furnishings of the rudest character. The windows were made of oiled paper, the seats of slabs, and the desks were made of sturgeon pine into the wall and laying a board on them. A school was taught in the Dillingham settlement in 1837 by Anna Lyons in part of her father's John Dillingham house; she had only eight or nine pupils. A school was maintained at Salt Creek from about 1837 to 1856, though no house for that purpose had been erected until the last mentioned year. The first teacher was Miss Kate Hoster, who received ten dollars per month.

An exciting affair occurred in the fall of 1835, when four or five Redskins, who were returning from Baily's trading post, and had become, as they termed it, "cockazy," attempted to enter the house of David and William Huphert. The women, who were alone, were badly frightened and barring the door, climbed into the loft. After much whooping and several vain attempts to break down the door with their tomahawks, the Indians departed just in time to escape the wrath of the Huphert brothers, who were returning home from a hunt. William Huphert's wife was so badly frightened that she died soon after from the effects of the scare, and his mother did not long survive her. These were the first deaths that occurred within the limits of this township.

Though these early pioneers were not compelled to endure the dangers incident to those who crossed the Alleghenies fifty years before, they lived amid their care and labors with no comforts, no conveniences, and few roads. They were forced to be self-reliant and dependent on their own resources. Their bread was often made from meal mixed with water and salt, and baked on a split shingle before the open fire. Their meat, when they had it, was usually the flesh of deer or other game killed in the woods. For such necessities as they bought, they had to go, at first, to South Bend and afterwards to Michigan City. They knew little of the so-called pleasures of to-day, yet unimpaired by conventionalities they had enjoyment. The raisings, log-rollings, shuckings, "bussing bus," and occasionally a wedding, furnished recreation suited to their life. The first of the latter occurrences was the marriage of William Huphert to Elizabeth Zane, on June 14, 1836, by Elijah Caspell, Justice of the Peace. The next was that of Daniel W. Lyons and Anna Dillingham, February 6, 1837.

Such were the early days in Liberty Township, days when itinerant ministers held meetings in the homes, and a corporation was formed to finance a steamboat to carry produce to Chicago. Hard days, but happy days, for the sturdy pioneers whose grand-children now fill the schools of Liberty Township and cultivate its broad acres in peace and quiet.

JOSEPHINE RICHARDS, of a literary turn of mind, had written a play, but she needed one hundred dollars to have it produced. Molly Pratt, her college chum, devised a clever scheme for raising the money. A convention was to be held in town and the officials were looking for lodgings for the delegates. Molly's idea was that she and Josephine should take them in as boarders and thus raise the necessary one hundred dollars. Josephine's aunt, in order to fairly well until the cook and the maid departed and Molly was compelled to disguise herself first as Josephine's aunt, in order to have a chaperon, and then as a servant. In addition, one of the delegates got sick, and Frank Palmer, a lady delegate to the convention, turned out to be a sneak-thief. Josephine's future mother-in-law arrived to complicate matters, but eventually a solution was discovered and the situation ended happily.

Sayings of the Wise

Mrs. Bookelmann—"Oh, who wrote Morte d'Arthur?"

Her "Oh, Maloney." (She meant Malory.)

* * *

Mrs. Albany—"How do you eat grapefruit?"

Her—"Raw."

* * *

Mrs. Bookelmann—"Hyron had the misfortune of having a clubfoot.

Her—"A club-foot! What's that, a wooden one?"

* * *

Mrs. Albany—"Ruth, is the Valparaiso National Bank a

Reverend Reserve Bank?"

* * *

Ruth E.—"I don't know. I haven't been in it yet."

* * *

Mrs. Albany speaking of dyeing goods—"You have noticed most's polka-dotted handkerchiefs."

Her—"Oh yes, after they have been washed a few times, the white holes fall out."

* * *

Mrs. Albany asked Alvar to discuss a certain question in her class.

Alvar—"Well, yesterday the book said—" (Laughter from the girls.)

Mrs. Albany—"Do you suppose the book changed since yesterday?"

the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are employed in the public sector has increased by 1.5 million, from 2.5 million in 1980 to 4 million in 1995. The public sector has also become an important employer of women, with 5.5 million women employed in the public sector in 1995, compared with 4.5 million in 1980.

There are a number of reasons why the public sector has become an important employer of women. One reason is that the public sector has become an important provider of social services, such as health care, education, and social housing. Another reason is that the public sector has become an important provider of social insurance, such as unemployment benefits and pension schemes. A third reason is that the public sector has become an important provider of social capital, such as community centres and voluntary organisations.
